++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Wet, windy weather gradually clearing east Wednesday morning. Increasingly fine.

This Evening and Tonight:
Perhaps turning drier in parts of the south at least for a time during the evening, but remaining rather cloudy in a generally rather wet and windy night. Conditions gradually improving from the west around dawn. Colder than recent nights. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Wednesday:
Wet and windy in the east at first, but gradually improving here to leave a generally fine day with sunny periods, although the remaining breeze will temper the warmth somewhat. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Becoming largely dry in this period, with variable amounts of cloud and some patchy fog during the mornings. Temperatures trending upwards for a time, before moderating again over the weekend.
